

FCC:

I would be a very, very bad idea to exclude competition in the broadband Internet marketplace. I use ADSL. As I understand it, SBC owns the equipment at the other end of my line. Over the years, I have found SBC (and the predecessor, PacBell) to have terrible customer service. Fortunately, I am able to purchase my ADSL service through an independent Internet service provider (sonic.net). The price is basically the same, but the service is vastly superior.

David